Let's Start!

Breaking the ice.

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Are you good at starting conversations with strangers? Why?
- What techniques do you use?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about emotions, opinions and behavior in a work situation.
- I can talk about what I will be doing or what I will have done.
- I can ask for clarification and ask for someone's opinion.

Let's Explore!

We wrote a proposal to start a new business.

* A "proposal" is a plan or suggestion often used in business.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Black suit: By this time tomorrow we will have finished our project and we will be getting on a plane heading on our vacation.
- Blue suit: Do you think we will have it finished by 9:00 p.m. tonight or will we be working on it all night?
- Black suit: No way. Mike will have done all his work by 5:00 p.m., so I think we'll have put it to bed before that even. I think we'll have it ready by 6:00, maybe 7:00 ... at the max.
- Jill: Excuse me, I couldn't help but overhear your conversation. What project are you working on?
- Black suit: We are finishing up a development proposal for the city planners. Hey ... I know you, don't I?
- Jill: Yes, I think we met at Jack's house, didn't we?
- Black suit: No, it was at Jack's birthday party. We were all at Melrose bar, weren't we?
- Jill: Yes, that's right. You work at Corbin Development, don't you?
- Black suit: Yes, we do.
- Black suit: What are you doing in this neck of the woods? Well, actually, I will be doing some research on Corbin. I was thinking of putting in a résumé here. I was wondering if I could have a few minutes of your time and ask you some questions.
- Black suit: Sure, you will be heading this way, won't you? Walk with us. We are just grabbing coffee.

Learning Points

The Future Continuous Tense vs. The Future Perfect Tense

You use the Future Continuous tense to talk about something happening at a particular time in the future.

You use the Future Perfect tense to talk about one action that will happen before another action in the future.

When you use the Future Continuous tense, the action will have started in the future, but it will not be finished. It will be ongoing.

For example:

I will be working at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

The person will be working in the future, at 4 p.m. When the person will stop working is not stated.

The structure of the Future Continuous is:

Subject + will + be + verb -ing

By this time tomorrow, we will be getting on a plane heading on our vacation.

With the Future Perfect tense we often use a time marker to specify when something will have happened by.

For example:

We can leave until 10 a.m. I will have picked up the car by then.

The movie will start at 9 p.m. You will arrive at the theater at 9:15 p.m. When you arrive, the movie will have started.

The structure of the Future Perfect tense is:

Subject + will + have + past participle

By this time tomorrow we will have finished our project.

Examples:

- Do you think we will have it finished by 9:00 p.m. tonight?
- Will we be working on it all night?
- By this time tomorrow we will have finished our project and we will be getting on a plane heading on our vacation.
- Mike will have done all his work by 5:00 p.m.
- I think we'll have put it to bed before that even. I think we'll have it ready by 6:00, maybe 7:00 ... at the max.
- I will be doing some research on Corbin.

Tag Questions

You use tag questions to ask for clarification and confirmation.

A question tag is a short question at the end of a statement.

These questions are used to:

- clarify/confirm whether what you have said is or is not true.
- They also signal the listener that you expect a reply from them.

1. A positive statement is followed by a negative question tag.
Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'yes'

- You were taken by surprise, weren't you?
- You are Canadian, aren't you?
- She has a brother, doesn't she?
- He can speak English, can't he?

1. A negative statement is followed by a positive question tag.
Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'no'

- You weren't taken by surprise, were you?
- You aren't Canadian, are you?
- She doesn't have a brother, does she?
- He can't speak English, can he?

If the main verb is to be or a modal verb, the tag will be the same.
For all other main verbs, use the tag do/does or did/didn't.
Look at the examples in the chart.

Main Verb	Tag	Main Verb	Tag
He is/was	isn't/wasn't he?	She has/had	doesn't/didn't she?
You are	aren't you?	You have	don't you?
He can	can't he?	He likes	doesn't he?
We could	couldn't we?	You like	don't you?
You will	won't you?	You liked	didn't you?
