

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

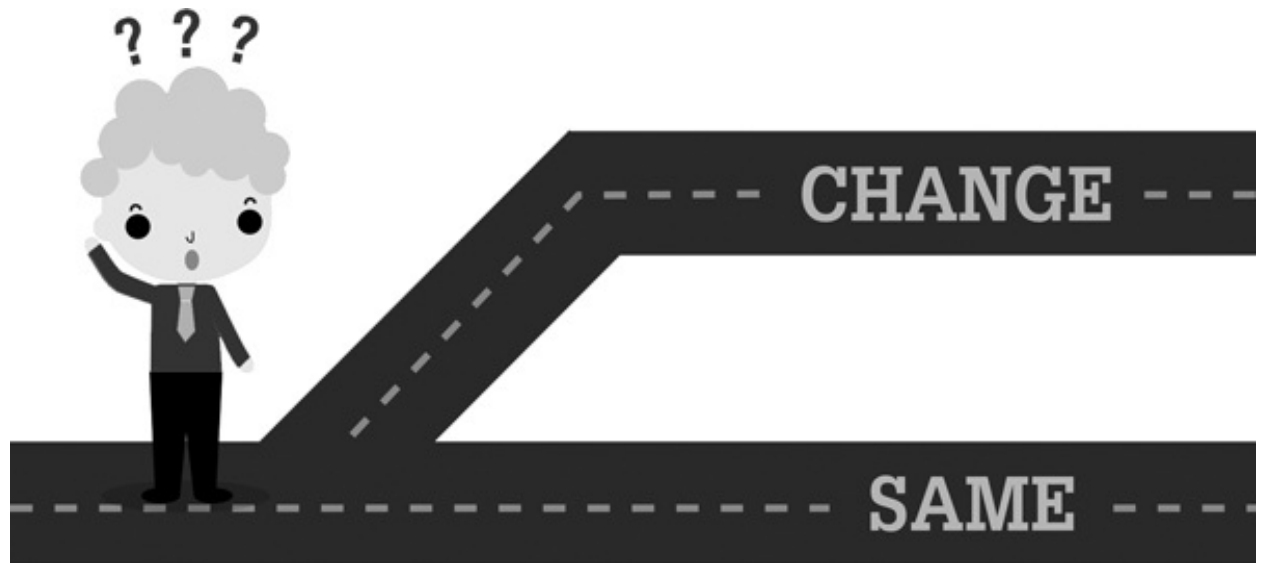

CONTENT

• Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Change is good!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Are you someone who likes change? Why or why not?
- What is the biggest change you have ever made?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about emotions, opinions and behavior in a work situation.
- I can talk about hypothetical situations in the past.
- I can talk about what I will be doing or what I will have done.

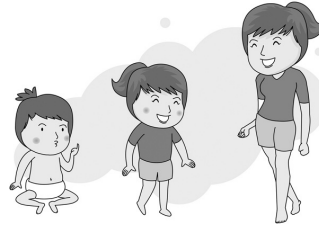

Let's Explore!

John is the new manager of the division. He is slowly climbing the corporate ladder.

* "Climbing the corporate ladder" means to move up in a company or organization.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

You are never too old to reinvent yourself. You often hear people lamenting about the past saying if only I had studied harder, I could have been a doctor, or I would have climbed the corporate ladder by now if I had only taken a chance that time, or I would have been happy if I had stayed with so and so.

I'm here to tell you folks that living in the past is harmful because it keeps you trapped in a world that no longer exists and does not allow you to move forward.

What people don't realize is that change is good. It may be painful at first, seem radical, perhaps even frightening, but change provides an important aspect that people need: personal growth.

Change leads to opportunities and experiences; change enables people to become learners and most importantly, change ensures that life stays interesting.

However, it is important to make goals so change doesn't sneak up on you. Here are a few for my near future goals that I will share with you. Please repeat!

In five years,
 I will have learned from my mistakes and not dwelt on them. I will never say if only I had done this, then I would have been that.
 I will have sought out new experiences and new opportunities.
 I will have embraced change no matter how scary.
 I will not be working at a job I do not enjoy.
 I will be learning at every moment of every day.

Because you are never too old ... to change.

Let's Practice!

John is lamenting his life.

Instructions: Underline the correct answer.

1. I have so many laments in life. First, if only (I have / had / hadn't) studied harder, I could have been a doctor.
2. I would have (climbed / climb / climbs) the corporate ladder by now if I had only taken a chance that time. I would be the boss.
3. Finally, I would have been happy if I (had stayed / have stayed / have stay) with so and so. What was her name again?
4. Meh! It is useless to say, "If only I (I have done / has done / had done) this, then I would have been that." Lamenting is stupid.

Let's Practice!

Debbie discusses her plans for personal growth!

Instructions: Complete each sentence by writing the correct Future Perfect or Future Continuous forms of the verbs in brackets. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. I _____ (learn) from my mistakes and not dwell on them.
2. I _____ (embrace) change no matter how scary it may seem.
3. I _____ (work) at a job I do not enjoy.
4. I _____ (learn) at every moment of every day from now on.

Extension Activity

Talk about a big change you want to make.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Tell a story to a partner about a time you had to make a big change in your life.
- Discuss what you did and how you felt during the change.
- Then write about your plans for the next year about a big change you want to make.
- Try to use Future Perfect Continuous and Future Perfect.
- Read your writing to a partner.
- Discuss your goals with them and get their opinion of them as well.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I express my feelings and emotions about change.

☐ ☐

I write goals and identify objectives.

☐ ☐

I express my goals clearly to a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to reinvent (verb): to remake
e.g. You are never too old to reinvent yourself.
- climb the corporate ladder (expression): the series of steps people go through as they gain more power in a corporation
e.g. If only I had studied harder, I could have been a doctor, or I would have climbed the corporate ladder by now
- so and so (expression): said when you don't know his or her name or you would rather not say the person's name e.g. I would have been happy if I had stayed with so and so.
- folks (noun): people
e.g. I'm here to tell you folks that living in the past is harmful because it keeps you trapped in a world that no longer exists and does not allow you to move forward.
- radical (adjective): to be extreme
e.g. It may be painful at first, seem radical, perhaps even frightening, but change provides an important aspect that people need: personal growth.
- aspect (noun): a particular part of something
e.g. It may be painful at first, seem radical, perhaps even frightening, but change provides an important aspect that people need: personal growth.
- to ensure (verb): to guarantee, make sure
e.g. Change ensures that life stays interesting.

Learning Points

The Third Conditional

There are four types of conditional sentences in English:

1. Zero Conditional - to talk about certainty and facts
2. First Conditional - to talk about real possibilities in the present or the future
3. Second Conditional - to talk about unreal possibilities in the present or the future
4. Third Conditional - to talk about unreal past situations

You use the third conditional to talk about unreal situations in the past.

These are things that did not happen in the past. You often use the third conditional to talk about regrets.

Look at the chart below for the structure of the third conditional:

Conditional Name	Structure	Example
Third	If + Past Perfect, could/would have + past participle	If only I had studied harder, I could have been a doctor.

Examples:

- If only I had studied harder, I could have been a doctor.
- I would have climbed the corporate ladder by now if I had only taken a chance that time.
- I would have been happy if I had stayed with so and so.
- If only I had done this, then I would have been that.

Learning Points

The Future Continuous Tense vs. The Future Perfect Tense

You use the Future Continuous tense to talk about something that will be happening at a specific time in the future.

You use the Future Perfect tense to talk about an action that will be completed in the future before another action in the future.

When you use the Future Continuous tense, the action will have begun before that moment but it will not have finished yet.

For example:

I will be working at 4:00 p.m. tomorrow.

The person will start work at some point in the future and be working at 4:00 p.m. It is not clear when the person will stop working.

The structure of the Future Continuous is:

Subject + will + be + verb -ing

I will be learning at every moment of every day.

The Future Perfect tense like the Present Perfect tense in the future.

For example:

I will finish the work at 9:30 a.m. You can pick up the work at 9:45 a.m. I will have finished the work by 9:45 a.m.

The movie will start at 7:15 p.m. You will arrive at the cinema at 7:20 p.m. When you arrive, the movie will have started.

The structure of the Future Perfect tense is:

Subject + will + (not) have + past participle

I will have sought out new experiences and new opportunities.

*Notice the position of not. It comes between will and have.

Examples:

- In five years, I will have learned from my mistakes and not dwelt on them.
- I will have embraced change no matter how scary.
- I will not be working at a job I do not enjoy.
- I will be learning at every moment of every day.

