

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

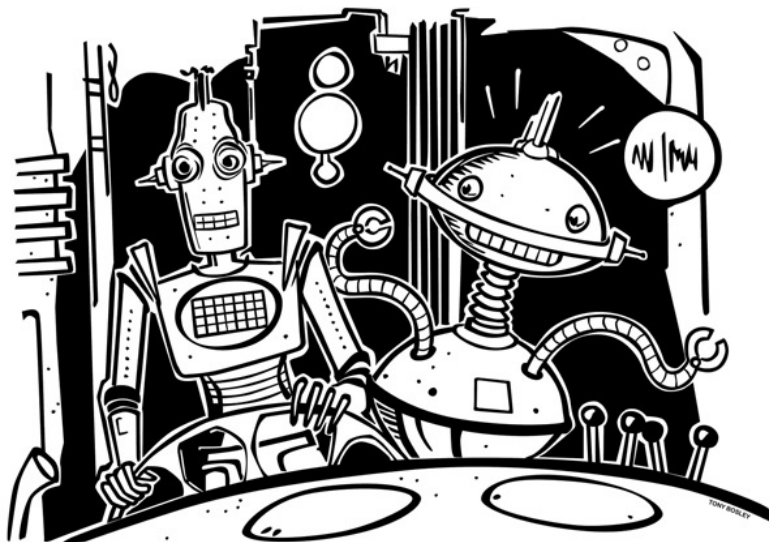

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What words and feelings come to mind when you hear the word robot?
- What kind of economic chaos would there be if robots took over our jobs?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about emotions, opinions and behavior in a work situation.
- I can talk about what I will be doing or what I will have done.
- I can talk about hypothetical situations in the past.

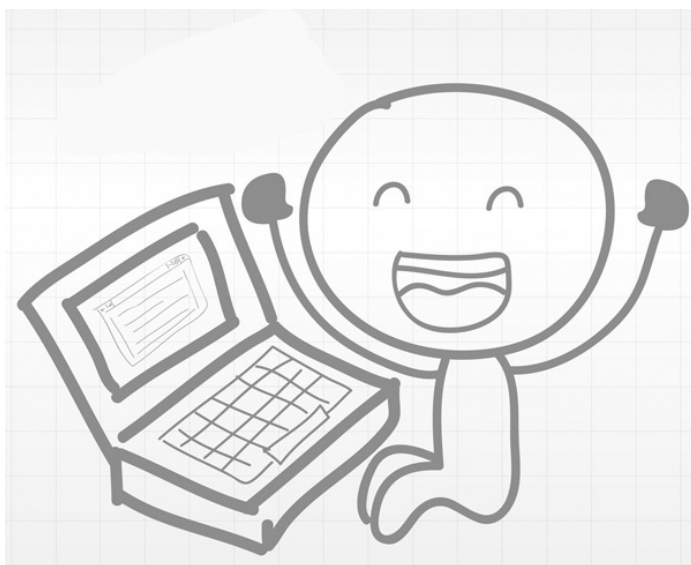

Let's Explore!

She is a top-notch sales representative. One of the best in the company.

* "Top-notch" means very good.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Well, it has been a long few months, hasn't it?

I said I would have a job after four months and I am happy and excited to report that I do. My friend Lisa and I are opening our own online education website. But you were going to work at Corbin, weren't you? Well, if Corbin had offered me a job I probably would have taken it, and if Durban Inc. had been interested, I would have probably gone there. Lisa would have gone to Turbo Store, if they had given her a better deal, but they didn't. I am glad they didn't because I wouldn't have found my new partner if she had joined that firm. Deep down we both had the same question that needed to be answered, "how to make education more accessible?" We wanted to create something substantial and innovative that we both would be eager to dive into. Lisa has a top-notch business mind and is always on the ball and I will be in charge of the technical side. We are going to keep things small at first because we shouldn't go too fast too soon, should we? So we have set some goals for ourselves. In six months, our website will be up and operating. We will have designed the website and created some curriculum. We will have moved into an office and we will have hired a staff.

At the end of a year, we hope we will be selling our curriculum to schools around the world. We have finished, haven't we?

You will stay in touch, won't you?

Let's Practice!

John Smith finally makes up his mind.

Instructions: Complete the sentences with the following options.

1. In six months, our website will be up and _____.
 - a. operate
 - b. operating
 - c. operated
2. We will _____ the website and created some curriculum.
 - a. have designed
 - b. has designed
 - c. had designed
3. We will have _____ into an office and we will have hired a staff.
 - a. move
 - b. moved
 - c. moving
4. At the end of a year, we hope _____ our curriculum to schools around the world.
 - a. we will be selling
 - b. we will be sold
 - c. we will be selling

Let's Practice!

John looks back at what might have been.

Instructions: Match a half from 1 - 4 with one from A - D to complete the sentences.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. If Corbin had offered me a job _____ | a. would have probably gone there. |
| 2. If Durban Inc. had been interested, I _____ | b. I probably would have taken it. |
| 3. Lisa would have gone to Turbo Store, _____ | c. if they had given her a better deal, but they didn't. |
| 4. I am glad they didn't because I wouldn't have found my new _____ | d. partner if she had joined that firm. |

Extension Activity

What will work be like in 50 years?

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- In pairs, brainstorm what work will look like in 50 years.
- What will have happened by then?
- Discuss what changes you think will have happened in 50 years.
- Say what will have happened.
- Change partners and compare your ideas using tag questions to clarify ideas.
- Return to your original partner and make a top five list of ideas for the future.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I make future predictions using Future Perfect.

☐ ☐

I express my opinions about the future of work.

☐ ☐

I share my ideas with other people.

☐ ☐

I use tag questions to check information.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- deep down (expression): intimately
e.g. Deep down we both had the same question that needed to be answered, "how to make education more accessible?"
- to dive into (verb): undertake enthusiastically
e.g. We wanted to create something substantial and innovative that we both would be eager to dive into.
- top-notch (adjective): the absolute best
e.g. Lisa has a top-notch business mind and is always on the ball.
- on the ball (expression): knowledgeable, competent
e.g. Lisa has a top-notch business mind and is always on the ball.
- to be in charge (verb): to have the responsibility of something e.g. I will be in charge of the technical side.
- substantial (adjective): large quantity
e.g. We wanted to create something substantial and innovative.
- innovative (adjective): original
e.g. We wanted to create something substantial and innovative.

Learning Points

The Third Conditional

There are four types of conditional sentences in English:

1. Zero Conditional - to talk about certainty and facts
2. First Conditional - to talk about real possibilities in the present or the future
3. Second Conditional - to talk about unreal possibilities in the present or the future
4. Third Conditional - to talk about unreal past situations

You use the third conditional to talk about unreal situations in the past.

These are things that did not happen in the past. You often use the third conditional to talk about regrets.

Look at the chart below for the structure of the third conditional:

Conditional Name	Structure	Example
Third	If + Past Perfect, could/would have + past participle	If Corbin had offered me a job I probably would have taken it.

Examples:

- If Corbin had offered me a job I probably would have taken it.
- If Durban Inc. had been interested, I would have probably gone there.
- Lisa would have gone to Turbo Store, if they had given her a better deal, but they didn't.
- I am glad they didn't because I wouldn't have found my new partner if she had joined that firm.

Learning Points

The Future Continuous Tense vs. The Future Perfect Tense

You can use the Future Continuous tense with be going to or will to talk about actions that will be in progress at a particular time in the future.

You can use the Future Perfect tense to talk about an action in the future that will already be completed by a particular time in the future.

You can use already with the Future Perfect to emphasize which action will happen first.

When you use the Future Continuous tense, the action will have started before that moment but it will not have finished at that moment.

For example:

I will be working at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

The person will be working, in the future at 4 p.m. When the person will stop working is not stated.

The structure of the Future Continuous is:

Subject + will + be + verb -ing

In six months, our website will be up and operating.

The Future Perfect tense is similar to the Present Perfect tense, in that it shows the relationship between two future events.

For example:

Please do not expect me to help you after 5:00 p.m. I will have already left the office.

The meeting will start at 9:00 a.m. You will arrive at the office at 9:15 a.m. When you arrive, the meeting will have already started.

The structure of the Future Perfect tense is:

Subject + will + have + past participle

We will have designed the website and created some curriculum.

Examples:

- In six months, our website will be up and operating.
- We will have designed the website and created some curriculum.
- We will have moved into an office and we will have hired a staff.
- At the end of a year, we hope we will be selling our curriculum to schools around the world.

