

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Doing what you want to do!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What is your dream job?
- Do you know anyone who is doing their dream job?
- How did they get to that position?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about emotions, opinions and behavior in a work situation.
- I can talk about hypothetical situations in the past.
- I can discuss hopes and plans about career goals.

Let's Explore!

It was petty *of the company to cancel the company picnic.

* "Petty" means of little importance; trivial.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

After the strike, the workers finally won and everything was back to normal; except, it wasn't. Management decided to keep some scab workers on the team. They even had the gall to move a few into management positions. Many people were appalled at the management's short-sightedness to do something so petty. That is when I decided to take the buy-out package and leave the company.

If management hadn't hired on scab workers, I would have stayed. In my opinion, they want the more experienced workers gone, so they can hire younger, cheaper ones. I think in five years, there will be a completely new staff there and in five years, all of the former employees will be working somewhere else.

It's a shame we went on strike. If we had talked to management more, we could have worked out our problems. If we had taken some extra time to listen to each other, the strike wouldn't have happened. However, it did, and now I find myself looking for a new job, but this time it will be different. This time I will find a job that I love and that I am passionate about. If I had followed my dreams earlier, I wouldn't have gotten myself into this mess. No bother, I give myself five months. In five months, I will be working in the job I want. In four months, I will be working in a job that I can build a career from. These are exciting times.

Let's Practice!

John Smith blogs about his strike experience!

Instructions: Read the beginnings of the sentences 1 - 4 and match them to their corresponding endings a - d. Write the letter in the space provided.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. If management hadn't hired on scab workers, _____ | a. the strike wouldn't have happened. |
| 2. If we had talked to management more, _____ | b. I wouldn't have gotten myself into this mess. |
| 3. If we had taken some extra time to listen to each other, _____ | c. I would have stayed. |
| 4. If I had followed my dreams earlier, _____ | d. we could have worked out our problems. |

Let's Practice!

Help John unscramble these sentences.

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentences.

- appalled / People / were / management's / at / shortsightedness.

- decided / to / take / package. / the / I / buy-out

- to / They / had / the / even / gall / management / a / move / positions. / few / into

- on / went / shame / strike. / It's / we / a

- keep / Management / to / scab / some / workers. / decided

- exciting / times. / are / These

Extension Activity

Follow your dreams!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online or to the library to find out about an interesting job you would like to do.
- Find out what it is and what they do.
- Explain why it is interesting to you.
- Write 200 words giving the full information in your own words.
- Try to use Future Continuous and Future tense to discuss career plans and career goals.
- Read your writing to a partner.
- Discuss your job with them and exchange ideas.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I find out about an interesting job.

☐ ☐

I write about it in a 200 words giving information and details.

☐ ☐

I use Future tense and Future Continuous tense to talk about my job.

☐ ☐

I share my ideas and ask my partner for his or her opinion of my job.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- scab (noun): strike breaker
e.g. Management decided to keep some scab workers on the team.
- buy-out (noun): money paid to an employee to leave a company e.g. That is when I decided to take the buy-out package and leave the company.
- gall (noun): imprudence
e.g. They even had the gall to move a few into management positions.
- petty (adjective): of little importance; trivial
e.g. Many people were appalled at management's short-sightedness to do something so petty.
- short-sightedness (noun): suffering from myopia
e.g. Many people were appalled at management's short-sightedness to do something so petty.
- no bother (expression): to express disagreement e.g. No bother, I give myself five months.
- strike (noun): a stoppage of activity to force an employer or some authority to agree to demands e.g. After the strike, the workers finally won and everything was back to normal; except, it wasn't.

Learning Points

The Future Tense vs. The Future Continuous Tense

You use the Future tense (will) to talk about a one-time action in the future.

You use the Future Continuous tense to talk about something happening (in progress) at a particular time in the future.

You use will to talk about a future action or event.

For example:

I think in five years, there will be a completely new staff there.

When you use the Future Continuous tense, the action will have started before that moment but it will not have finished at that moment.

For example:

I will be working at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

The person will start work at some point in the future and be working at 4 p.m. It is not clear when the person will stop working.

All of the former employees will be working somewhere else.

The structure of the Future Continuous is:

Subject + will + be + verb -ing

In five months, I will be working in the job I want.

Examples:

- In five months, I will be working in the job I want.
- In four months, I will be working in a job that I can build a career from.
- I think in five years, there will be a completely new staff there and in five years, all of the former employees will be working somewhere else.

Learning Points

The Third Conditional

There are four types of conditional sentences in English:

1. Zero Conditional - to talk about certainty and facts
2. First Conditional - to talk about real possibilities in the present or the future
3. Second Conditional - to talk about unreal possibilities in the present or the future
4. Third Conditional - to talk about unreal past situations

You use third conditional to talk about unreal situations in the past.

These are things that did not happen in the past. You often use the third conditional to talk about regrets.

Look at the chart below for the structure of the third conditional:

Conditional Name	Structure	Example
Third	If + Past Perfect, could/would have + past participle	If we had talked to management more, we could have worked out our problems.

Examples:

- If management hadn't hired on scab workers, I would have stayed.
- If we had talked to management more, we could have worked out our problems.
- If we had taken some extra time to listen to each other, the strike wouldn't have happened.
- If I had followed my dreams earlier, I wouldn't have gotten myself into this mess.

