

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Searching for the perfect job.

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever had to look for a job?
- What strategies did you use to find one? Which were the most effective?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about emotions, opinions and behavior in a work situation.
- I can talk about hypothetical situations in the past.
- I can ask for clarification and ask for someone's opinion.

Let's Explore!

I am so eager to start my new job on Monday. It is all I can talk about.

* "Eager" means wanting to do or have something very much.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

"It makes you money, doesn't it?" "No? Then, it makes you happy, doesn't it?" "No! Then why are you doing it?"

That was my Uncle Adam's opinion on my previous position. I liked to say if there hadn't been a strike, I would have stayed, or if management hadn't hired scab employees, I wouldn't have left.

Deep down though, I knew if they had paid me more, I'd still be there and I wouldn't have quit if I had loved the job even a tiny bit more. His philosophy on work boils down to two questions: Does it make you money, or, Does it make you happy? Which is fine, if you want to just pay your bills. But, to get my dream job, I need to dig a little deeper, don't I? So, I came up with a couple of more questions to help me.

The first one is, "What big problem is driving me crazy right now?" Solving this problem is the secret to helping me understand what I was born to do. For example, the education system is obsolete and there is opportunity in online learning, isn't there? This leads me to the next question which is: "What companies are solving my problem?"

If you had had something in common with that company then, it would have piqued your interest and your passion to work there. You now know a place that may hold your dream job. Now, you just need to find away to get your foot in the door and show them how eager you are to work there.

Let's Practice!

John Smith explains why he quit!

Instructions: Circle all the correct answers to the question below.

1. Which answers are grammatically correct?
 - a. If management hadn't hired scab employees, I wouldn't have left.
 - b. If my boss had been a little nicer, I would had stayed.
 - c. I would have not quit, if my manager was more friendly.
 - d. Deep down though, I knew if they had paid me more, I'd still be there.
 - e. If management had hired a new boss, I would have stayed.
 - f. I would not have quit if I loved the job even a tiny bit more.
 - g. If there hadn't been a strike, I would have stayed.

Let's Practice!

Your job makes you happy, doesn't it?

Instructions: Write the correct words from the list in their corresponding place to complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

- a. aren't there?
- b. doesn't it?
- c. don't I?
- d. There is opportunity in online learning
- e. It makes you money
- f. I have a chance,

1. _____, doesn't it?
2. No? Then, it makes you happy, _____.
3. I need to dig a little deeper, _____.
4. _____, isn't there?

Extension Activity

If only I had done things differently!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Talk about a funny job hunting experience, make one up or talk about a friend's or family member's experience.
- Write down what happened in point form.
- Now, rewrite the story using hypothetical situations in the past focusing on the things you could have done differently.
- Exchange stories with a partner and check each other's grammar.
- Change partners and read your story.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I write about a funny experience looking for a job.

☐ ☐

I use hypothetical situations in the past to retell the story.

☐ ☐

I edit my partner's story.

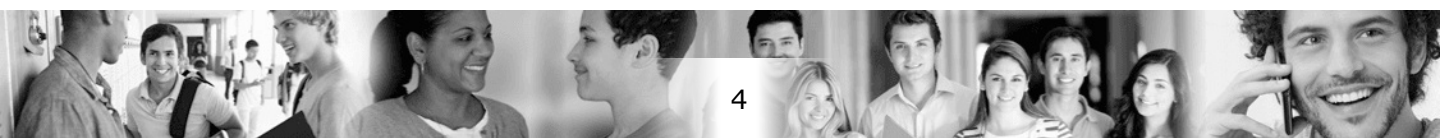

☐ ☐

I share my story about a funny experiences looking for a job with others.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- boils down to (verb): to reduce to its essential parts
e.g. His philosophy on work boils down to two questions: does it make you money, or does it make you happy?
- drives me crazy (expression): exasperate someone e.g. What big problem is driving me crazy right now?
- get your foot in the door (expression): to enter a business at a low level and take the opportunity to be successful
e.g. You just need to find a way to get your foot in the door and show them how eager you are to work there.
- piqued my interest (expression): to arouse interest
e.g. It would have piqued your interest and your passion to work there.
- deep down (expression): you are certain that is true
e.g. Deep down though, I knew if they had paid me more, I'd still be there.
- obsolete (adjective): no longer in general use
e.g. The education system is obsolete and there is opportunity in online learning, isn't there?
- eager (adjective): show interest
e.g. You just need to find a way to get your foot in the door and show them how eager you are to work there.

Learning Points

The Third Conditional

There are four types of conditional sentences in English:

1. Zero Conditional - used to talk about certainty and facts
2. First Conditional - used to talk about real possibilities in the present or future
3. Second Conditional - used to talk about unreal possibilities in the present or future
4. Third Conditional - used to talk about unreal past situations

You use the third conditional to talk about unreal situations in the past. These are things that did not happen in the past. You often use the third conditional to talk about regrets.

Look at the chart below for the structure of the third conditional:

Conditional Name	Structure	Example
Third	If + Past Perfect, could/would have + past participle	If there hadn't been a strike, I would have stayed.

Examples:

- If management hadn't hired scab employees, I wouldn't have left.
- Deep down though, I knew if they had paid me more, I'd still be there.
- I would not have quit if I loved the job even a tiny bit more.

Tag Questions

You use tag questions to ask for clarification and confirmation.

Question tags are short questions you add at the end of comments.

They are mostly used in spoken English when you want to:

- clarify/confirm if something is true or not true, or
- to encourage a response from the person you are speaking to.

1. An affirmative statement is followed by a negative question tag. Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'yes'

- You were taken by surprise, weren't you?
- You are Canadian, aren't you?
- She has a brother, doesn't she?
- He can speak English, can't he?

Learning Points

1. A negative statement is followed by an affirmative question tag.
Use this when you think the other person will agree by saying 'no'

- You weren't taken by surprise, were you?
- You aren't Canadian, are you?
- She doesn't have a brother, does she?
- He can't speak English, can he?

If the main verb is to be or a modal verb, the tag will be the same.
For all other main verbs, use the tag do/does or did/didn't.
Look at the examples in the chart.

Main Verb	Tag
He is/was	isn't/wasn't he?
You are	aren't you?
He can	can't he?
We could	couldn't we?
You will	won't you?
She has/had	doesn't/didn't she?
You have	don't you?
He likes	doesn't he?
You like	don't you?
You liked	didn't you?

Examples:

- "It makes you money, doesn't it?"
- "No? Then, it makes you happy, doesn't it?"
- I need to dig a little deeper, don't I?
- There is opportunity in online learning, isn't there?

